History: Ocean City was faced with the monumental task of having to digitize their construction permit applications which had been water damaged from Hurricane Sandy. There were large volumes of paper to manage, as the city was inundated with OPRA requests pertaining to the construction department.

"Foveonics was able to meet all of our scanning needs as well as provide us with a web-based document management system for easy search and retrieval. This saved the city countless time and resources from the manual process."
